The Historic Klondike Route

Hike the Chilkoot Trail and Canoe the Yukon River!

“The Klondike Gold Rush captured the imagination of the world. Rich and poor, young and old, women and men were attracted to the Klondike from all parts of the globe. No imagine better represents this historic event than the endless line of stampedeers struggling over the Chilkoot Pass during the winter of 1897-98. Today the Chilkoot Trail National and Klondike Gold Rush National Historic Park commemorate this extraordinary journey. The contrast between the scenic grandeur of the coastal mountains and the fragile remains of the stampedeers’ goods and temporary structures make the Chilkoot a unique backcountry trail.” A hiker’s guide to the Chilkoot trail

In 2001, AMG took National Geographic on the Klondike Route and was featured as the cover story.

Historic Klondike Route Information

Join us for 15 days of adventure in the Alaska and the Yukon. We'll start our trip in historic Skagway, Alaska with a 4-day hike over the Chilkoot Trail, traveling in the footsteps of gold rushers from 100 years ago. Once over the trail we'll trade hiking boots for paddles and begin the 400 miles of canoeing that will bring us to Dawson City Yukon, and the heart of the Klondike gold country. Along the way we'll pass derelict steam ships, native villages, gold dredges, current day fish camps, trappers cabins, Fort Selkirk, and other relics from the Gold Rush. We'll also visit Whitehorse, the capital of the Yukon, we'll run the famous Five Finger Rapids, and pass through Lake Labarge. Where Robert Service set his famous poem "The cremation of Sam Magee". We'll also pass by Henderson Creek where Jack London spent much of his time in the Klondike. Floating down the swift Yukon River will also allow us opportunity to fish for Lake trout, Arctic Grayling, and Northern Pike.

This trip is perfect for individuals and families wishing to enjoy the splendor of the Yukon Wilderness while traveling this historic route. In addition to the numerous historical sites, we will also have opportunity to view wildlife such as bear, wolf, moose, mink, wolverine, eagles, hawks and waterfowl.
